

Gene Bloch

Senior Program Leader

Experience

Gene was six minutes into the Communicate to Influence program when he realized Decker was exactly where he wanted to be. He loves helping people become better communicators and is consistently amazed by the effectiveness of video feedback.

Gene has worked with many of Decker's top clients, including Concur, Direct Energy, Ericsson, Fidelity, Hightower, Hilton, Pfizer, Sendgrid, Stryker and Two Sigma.

Gene comes to Decker with an extensive background in journalism, including more than two decades at CNN in a wide range of production and newsgathering roles. He played a lead role covering stories including the financial crisis, the Occupy Wall Street movement, the Bernard Madoff securities fraud case, Superstorm Sandy and the September 11th terror attacks.

His passion for communication extends to music, as well. A pianist, bassist and guitarist, he's recently begun composing and recording. Additionally, Gene loves hunting for the best artisanal cheeses among many other foods. He lives in New York City with his wife and two children.

Education

Gene graduated with a BA from Montclair State College with an emphasis in broadcasting.

About Decker Communications, Inc.
